But, you might also wonder if iteÁÁÁÁ okay to save the media you find online eÁÁÁÁ from both ethical and personal-security standpoints. Before you download the first browser extension you come across or paste a URL into a potentially shady video extractor, iteÁÁÁÁs important to learn about how to eÁÁÁÁ and when you can eÁÁÁÁ download videos online safely. When Is It Okay to Download Online Videos? YouTube, Facebook, even TikTok eÁÁÁÁ plenty of sites are known for providing high-quality, user-generated video content. But is it actually okay to download videos from these and other sites? Generally, if the content is likely copyrighted eÁÁÁÁ say it comes from a streaming TV channel or news station eÁÁÁÁ you shouldñeÁÁÁÁ download it. However, thereeÁÁÁÁs some grey area when it comes to things you find on social media and other sites. It also matters what you will do with them. Photo Provided: Spiffy/e+/getty Images YouTube is one of the websites that people usually want to download videos (or just the audio of these videos). Your Terms of Service require that you do not copy, distribute, transmit or sell content that you have not created that is sent to the site unless you have explicit written permission from YouTube or the original Creator to do so. However, there are some situations where it can be good to download the media. If you already have the videos - say they were posted on your YouTube channel - and you want to support them? That must be fine. If you're making a video or response parody and want to reference someone else's content, you may not have problems. Videos that have Creative Commons licenses or that are of public domain are also generally good for downloading. However, it is better not to save the content that someone created, especially if it is your intellectual property and they move it. Remember that downloading anything from YouTube violates the terms of service, no matter what, but it is not a criminal act to download the common creative public domain or distributable video. Just as you take precautions when opening an email that may be a phishing scam, you also need to take precautions when downloading videos online. File sharing torrent sites and some video extractors, which are the websites you paste on the URL of the page that has the video you want to download and the Download site a copy, can get infected with malware that they deposit on your computer. When you open the downloaded files. For this reason, it is better to avoid torrents sites in particular - you have no idea who sent the content and what they could do in that sense. Photo Provided: Momo Productions/DigitalVision/Getty Images, search for reliable sources to get if youeÁÁÁÁre using Google Chrome as your browser, for example, visit the Chrome Web Store to search for extensions you can add that help you download videos. These usually have ratings from users about their performance, and you can spend some time researching what other people recommend as the safest options. Look for those that are highly rated and the most frequently downloaded; theyeÁÁÁÁre generally the safer choices. Make sure the sources youeÁÁÁÁre downloading from are also safe. YouTube videos usually don'eÁÁÁÁt have malware attached. You might also opt to download certain content like videos from Netflix, which you can save to your computer and watch later offline. Streaming services that allow you to do this are almost always safe because that functionality exists specifically so you can download videos eÁÁÁÁ just don'eÁÁÁÁt distribute them or try to make money off of them. You should also run a virus scanner on files after youeÁÁÁÁve downloaded them. Chrome and other browsers may incorporate these and automatically scan files to make sure theyeÁÁÁÁre safe. Enable this option if you haven'eÁÁÁÁt already. Surefire Safe Saving If you want to save a video that youeÁÁÁÁre sure is safe to keep eÁÁÁÁÁ maybe iteÁÁÁÁÁs something personal a family member shared on social media and you have their permission eÁÁÁÁÁ thereeÁÁÁÁs one way to do so that may be the safest: screen recording. Many computers and other devices these days are equipped with this feature, which creates a video of whatever youeÁÁÁÁre playing on the deviceeÁÁÁÁs screen while the recorder application is running. Photo Courtesy: Westend61/Getty Images There are a few limitations with this; for example, youeÁÁÁÁÁ need to let the video play the whole way through and have the volume level up while youeÁÁÁÁre recording. However, thereeÁÁÁÁs no risk of malware contaminating the files because theyeÁÁÁÁre created on and saved to your device only.
